REV. MELISSA ST. CLAIR TO BE THE NEXT MINISTER FOR FAITH AND GIVING AND EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Board of Stewards of the Center for Faith and Giving is excited to announce the call of Rev. Melissa St. Clair to be the next Minister for Faith and Giving and Executive Director of the Center.

“The search process was exhilarating from the beginning because of the quality of all the candidates who applied for the position,” said Rev. Tanya J. Tyler, chair of the Board of Stewards for the CFG. “The search process was challenging because we had some very outstanding candidates who would have served admirably as the Minister for Faith and Giving. Ultimately, the search committee was most impressed with Melissa’s knowledge, enthusiasm, and insight. We look forward to working with Melissa to take the Center for Faith and Giving to the next level. Welcome, Melissa!”

↔↔↔ KEEP WRITING ↔↔↔

I talked to our former minister today.
At the end of our conversation
I heard him say, “Keep writing!”
I needed that boost because I had been fighting a block and felt I had nothing left to say (at least that would matter in any way), and it suddenly dawned on me that my writing didn’t have to be important to anyone else but myself, even if my journal would sit on a shelf—good for nothing but gathering dust.
I know to help myself I must put my feelings into the written word, whether or not they’re ever heard.
I need to freely express how I feel in words that are true and real,
and maybe, just maybe,
they will resonate
with someone else,
who has experienced the same fate, and will give encouragement and hope to another who is trying to cope.
