REMEMBER - REFLECT - RECOMMIT

May we see
 Juneteenth - Freedom Day as a time to remember the atrocities of slavery inflicted on Blacks in this country; reflect on the persistence of racialized oppression and how it has continued as an ever-present reality for millions; and recommit ourselves to the work of justice and liberation that we all must continue to do on behalf of the marginalized and oppressed.

↔️ LOST ↔️

It seems to me the well has run dry, and I don't really know why.
 I'm not inspired to write anymore—at least not like I was before.
 Maybe I'm just too darned tired to be enthused and inspired about putting words to my thoughts, or, maybe, my mind is tied up in "nots" of negativity for I seem to show no proclivity for righting the wrongs or writing any songs.
 Music seems to have left my soul, leaving a huge hole in my heart, and I don't know where to start, to make things right so that I can once again write.
 I pray that soon the words will come, and I can come back from this desert of negativity into an oasis of creativity. ~Neva Balduff
